

Translink bus strike ends as workers accept new deal

Translink management offered a new pay offer at the eleventh hour – which bus drivers, cleaners and shunters have accepted.

The offer means strikes will not go ahead.

Peter Macklin, GMB Organiser, said:

"This shows the strength that workers have when they stick together to demand a fair deal.

"This is a well deserved pay increase and package that our members fought hard for.

“We thank every member who stood firm and earned this decent pay deal for themselves and their colleagues.”
