

Northern Ireland transport unions re-enter Translink talks

Unions have issued the following joint statement:

"Northern Ireland's transport unions - GMB, SIPTU and Unite, have agreed to re-enter discussions with Translink management.

"Unions aim to achieve a resolution to the ongoing pay dispute around the 2023-24 fiscal year.

"Members of all three trade unions voted last week with a decisive majority to reject as inadequate a pay offer from management.

"Unions agreed to re-enter negotiations following discussions with reps and officials.

"No further public comments will be made on the dispute ahead of the conclusion of talks."
